

Connaught Laboratories first research laboratory, Medical Building, U. of T., in which influenza research was undertaken

At Connaught Labs, a small team under the direction of Robert Defries (below), worked 24/7 to prepare a vaccine and supplied it free of charge to provincial health departments, hospitals, the military and other public health services across the country

